CARROLL-SULLIVAN.

Brilliant Wedding at the Catholic Church Last Evening.

Mr. Charles Carroll and Miss Katie Sul livan were united in marriage at the Cath olic church, at 8 o'clock last evening, Rev. Father Murphy officiating. A large number of the friends of the high contracting parties were present to witness the solemn ceremony which binds together for future weal or woe the lives and fortunes of two young hearts. The ceremony was pronounced according to the beautiful rites of the Catholic church, and in Father Murphy's usual impressive manner.

The attendants were Mr. John Gaffney and Miss Mamie Sullivan, sister of the bride.

At the conclusion of the ceremonies a the church, the bridal party entered carrisges and were driven to the residence of the bride's father, Mr. Patrick Sullivan. where a reception was held and which was attended by the relatives and a number of the friends of the high contracting parties. An elegant supper was served, and after

Mr. and Mrs. Carroll had received the warm congratulations of their friends present, the evening was given up to social pleasures, and all present enjoyed themselves to the fullest extent.

Mr. Carroll, the fortunate young groom, is employed as a machinist in the Missouri Pacific shops, and by his industry and his sterling worth and integrity has not only sent, gained a high place in the esteem of his employers, but has made a large number of warm and true friends, who wish him all the happiness imaginable in his new found relation.

The charming young bride has long been a bright particular star in the circle in which she moves. Beautiful, amiable and accomplished, she will be all that the sacred name of wife implies to the man who was so fortunate as to win her for the mistress of his home and fireside.

Mrs. and Mrs. Carroll, like the sensible young couple that they are, will not waste time on an extended bridal tour, but will at once settle down to house keeping in the cosy little home which the thoughtful husband has prepared.

The bride's costume was composed of a handsome myrtle brocade velvet and large plush hat with flowers. The happy young couple were the recipients of a number of elegant and useful presents, of which the following is a partial list:

Silver cake stand, Mr. and Mrs. M. Silver butter dish, Mr. J. W. Murphy.

She had tried to beg, but had not the courage and cheek essential to make a success of the calling. From letters and clippings in her possession it seems she has three times attempted to take another occasion by jumping from a passenger train while it was running at a rapid rate. She tells the following story regarding herself:

She is a daughter of a farmer named Acord, living near Dresden, Iowa. She married Ivan Wheeler, of Grinnell, Iowa, March 22, 1881. Her husband was a dissipated, good-for-nothing rascal. In Decemwas killed. Wheeler was charged with Following is a list of the principal pur- pushing him from the car, and to evade arrest on charge of murder left the country. Sam Wherry, T. G. When asked why she did not go home to her folks and stay, she said it was because of the cruel and brutal treatment she received at the hands of her father. She said she had spent a few weeks at home, and during that time her father had not spoken to her but once, and had not noticed her baby at all; while on other occasions, since her husband left her, her father had treated her so cruelly that she could not possibly stay at home. She has numerous press notices, clipped from the Chicago Times and other papers, corroborating all the above statements and expressing the deepest sympathy for her. She also has a number of letters written to her by her mother. They are all filled with the deepest motherly affection, and show the evidences of being written by a good, refined, scholarly and Christian woman. They also confirm the unpleasant home relations of the unfortunate woman. Besides these letters she has a number of recommendations from hotels where she has worked, and from individuals under whose notice she has fallen. Mrs. Wheeler is an intelligent, plain looking woman, and tells a straightforward story without hesitancy. It is corroborated in every particular by the letters and newspaper clippings which she has in her possession. She left her father's house, near Dresden, Iowa, on foot, carrying her boy in her arms, and made her way to Texas, from which state she is now returning and de-

Accordingly she made all of the facts known to a policeman, who, upon bearing her story, felt justified in arresting Mr. Russell, which he did and landed him in the cooler, finding a revolver on the per-

On Sunday morning, Russell, entirely ignorant of the charge which had been preferred against him, and also not being sufficiently informed to know that the city fever, aged two years and four months, and could not hold him on a charge of the nature mentioned, agreed to marry the victim of his lust. Accordingly the officer procured a license and the ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Jackson Sunday afternoon.
